

authority to the conquerors from the north.

They have accepted as evidence of his good faith the fact that he has sent representatives to Carranza with all authority to treat for an exchange of authority, and that he has imposed the only conditions that private property should be protected in the capital, and that there should be a general amnesty granted to political offenders. These, in substance, are believed to be the exact conditions imposed on Carranza by the United States through Consul John R. Silliman.

Expect Carranza To Agree.

Despite the belligerent tone given by Carranza's main advisers from the constitutionalist headquarters, the Administration here is confident that Carranza will not reject the proposals of Carbajal. It is believed here that Carranza's main object is to obtain the reins of government, and, in so doing, to obtain the confidence and moral assistance of foreign nations.

Carranza has offered to surrender the government, and the United States, Argentina, Brazil, and Chile stand ready to back up the transfer with assurances of recognition for the constitutionalist government.

Without this recognition Carranza realizes, it is believed, that he will be without means of raising the funds necessary to the restoration of order and the prevention of counter-revolution. Therefore, it is hardly thought that he will risk this support by refusing to pay the debts of the Carranza government. To do this would ruin his credit in this hemisphere and abroad.

Rebel Generals to Vote On Amnesty Question

Carranza's fighting men, the generals who have made his cause triumphant, will decide what measure of amnesty is to be granted the men they fought. The question has already been submitted to them. If they advocate conciliatory tactics, they will be adopted. But it is feared that in the case of most of the higher officials of the federal army they will demand that they be slain.

The constitutionalist junta here admits that the matter is up to the generals, but insists that so far it has no information of the recommendations.

Meanwhile the United States continues its efforts to influence Carranza for conciliation. Until this is settled and Carranza announces a definite policy regarding his plans of government, President Wilson will not announce a change of policy for the United States.

"We are still watchfully waiting," is the announcement from the White House.

Officials refuse to discuss the attitude to be assumed by the United States regarding the Carranza debate. The government persuades Carranza to assume the reins of government, and the United States will not do so. But whether the United States will endorse the stand of the powers or side with Carranza, has not yet been determined. The President believes should have fire until stable government is restored to Mexico.

Bryan Hears Carbajal Plans to Retire Soon

Provisional President Carbajal of Mexico will not stand in the way of the pacification of Mexico, he so told the Mexican City diplomats at a formal reception yesterday as reported officially to the State Department by the Brazilian minister today.

The minister quoted Carbajal as saying he planned to remain only temporarily in his position.

"He frankly added that he would not allow his personal interests to influence the pacification of the country," the minister stated.

Official confirmation of Huerta's arrival at Puerto Mexico was contained in a brief message from General Punzon to the War Department of the United States. The fall of the important city of San Luis Potosi was lacking, but Consul Silliman's message showing intention of the city was interpreted as a possible confirmation that the city has been captured by the constitutionalists.

Carbajal Faces Crisis In Depleted Treasury

MEXICO CITY, July 18.—The Carbajal government is facing a crisis. It has no money. Its treasury is depleted of funds, and salaries of thousands of government employees are due. The army is unpaid. Discontent in the ranks of the civilian employees and the military over the probable non-payment of salaries is causing the new administration protracted anxiety.

The chances are that salaries will be unpaid for some time yet, as the treasury is empty. The salaries of practically all government men are due next Monday.

President Carbajal's associates today frankly admitted that the executive has found himself in financial straits, and is facing the gravest of situations.

It is possible that the banks will come to the rescue. Carbajal's only hope rests on this.

Huerta took with him when he fled the country, not only the treasury, but the reserves, however, that the former dictator looted the treasury. The finances of the republic have been low for years. When Diaz left the country, there was but little money in the treasury. Madero, when he became the executive, found even less, and his friends of Huerta declare that there was scarcely any left to the credit of the government when the latter assumed control.

President Carbajal expected to find the treasury depleted, following the abdication of General Huerta. But he believed he would at least find funds with which to meet the expenses incurred in the government offices. If the government clerks and many higher officials are not paid it is certain that serious discontent will follow and the provisional administration will face trouble at the very outset.

Fear Zapata's Bands.

Although reports reaching here state that Zapata and other revolutionists in the vicinity of the capital have declared they will not recognize Carbajal, an advance on the city is not expected until the revolutionists are recognized by Carranza. The greatest danger is from disorganized bands which might seize upon the change in administration as a signal for looting and murder.

Word from General Carranza is also awaited as to the Congress which shall be recognized in the coming months of the Maderista congress, dissolved by Huerta, declare this to be the only constitutional law making provision for the approval of Carranza, members of this congress desire to call a session and take up an investigation into the assassination of President Madero.

Faithful Service Brings $5,000 Bequest in Will

"As a slight recognition of her years of faithful service," Nora Giammona is to receive a bequest of $5,000 under the terms of the will of Martha Moran McKim, dated June 5, 1900, which has been filed for probate. Mrs. McKim died July 12.

The will stipulates that the legacy is not to be levied upon for an inheritance tax which shall be paid out of the residuary estate. All other property of which she was possessed is to be given to her husband, William Dunne McKim, who is named executor.

DOCTORS SAY SHE WILL DIE

MISS NORA BAYES.

Vaudeville and musical comedy circles got a shock when it was learned that Nora Bayes, prominent in both, had received her death sentence from physicians in Europe.

Edward V. Darling, general booking manager of the Keith Theaters, who is in Europe looking for vaudeville acts, cabled the United Booking offices that Miss Bayes had been ordered to Kissinger, and that her physicians had informed her that she did not have more than six months to live.

Mme. Caillaux Fears Only Sex Disloyalty

PARIS, July 18.—With her liberty at stake in the trial opening Monday, Mme. Joseph Caillaux has let it be known that she does not trust her own sex enough to permit their presence in the court room while she is being tried for the shooting of Gaston Calmette.

Women will be barred at the express request of Mme. Caillaux herself, said Attorney D'Arban, who, though not connected with the case, claims to have the story from an irrefutable source.

Death or Exile Decried For All Federal Officers

JUAREZ, Mexico, July 18.—The Mexican federal army will be disarmed and disbanded and the entire force of officers court-martialed and either executed or expelled from Mexico for periods of from five to ten years.

This is the plan to be followed by the constitutionalists when the final transfer of the national government from President Carranza to General Carranza is made, according to announcement at constitutionalist headquarters here today.

In general, Carranza approves the disbanding of the Huerta army, although it is expected he will object to the court-martial.

Gen. Alvaro Obregon, commanding the division of the northwest, already has been ordered to disarm the federalists from Guadalajara and Mexico City, especially at Queretaro. It is expected that the disarming of the Huerta army will be completed by the end of the month.

Reports from Carranza state that negotiations for the surrender of the city of San Luis Potosi are being carried on between Gen. Jesus Carranza and the federal commander. The federalists will retire to Mexico City.

Answer Demand for Cancellation of Deed

Answers to the amended bill of Mary J. Cooper against William H. Cooper and others for cancellation of a deed have been filed in the Supreme Court of the District by Paul V. Mitchell and the Quaker City Investment Company.

The investment company replies that it came into possession of a note involved in the transaction on March 20, 1914, in good faith, paying $20 for it, and that the usual investigation of the property covered by the deed of trust, which purported to secure the note, was made by its attorney, for both respondents.

MAY FORCE FIRE VICTIM TO RETIRE

Board of Surgeons Orders Man Hurt in Five-and-Ten-Cent Store Blaze to Show Cause.

William A. Schwerdtfeger, a private in No. 6 Engine Company, and one of the men injured in the fire and collapse of the American Five and Ten Cent Store, December 24, has been given ten days in which to show cause why he should not be placed on the retired list without trial or pension.

Following an examination of Schwerdtfeger by the board of police and fire surgeons, it was reported to Acting Chief A. J. Sullivan that Schwerdtfeger was suffering from illness contracted during his army service, and not in line of duty as a fireman. Schwerdtfeger, given until July 27 to show cause, will fight retirement.

Not Before Commission.

Commissioner Sidons said today that Schwerdtfeger's retirement had not come before the Commission.

"The utmost sympathy is felt for Schwerdtfeger, but if it is found by the board of surgeons that his illness was not contracted in line of duty, some action must be taken," said Commissioner Sidons. "Until all of the details are before the Commission it cannot be said what their action will be."

Schwerdtfeger was injured by the collapse of the walls of the American Five and Ten Cent Store at the fire on December 24.

An investigation by a board appointed by the Commissioners consisting of Capt. Mark Brooke, Assistant Engineer Commissioner Charles F. Nesbitt, Superintendent of Insurance, and Joseph C. Soehy, chairman of the Excise Board, followed, as a result of which Deputy Fire Chief Andrew J. Sullivan, charged with neglect of duty, was acquitted of responsibility for the accident.

The report of the trial board, submitted February 25, is still under consideration.

Schwerdtfeger was appointed July 26, 1910, and on October 1, 1911, advanced to class 2. His army record shows that he was a corporal in Battery "D," 1st Field Artillery, and that he received medical treatment July 25 and 26, 1908, while drilling at Camp Columbia, Cuba, and in 1910, for rheumatism.

Schwerdtfeger, officials of the Fire Department say, has collapsed on several occasions while fighting fires. The report of the board of police and surgeons is that he is "permanently unfit for the duties of a fireman, and that his retention in the service would be a source of danger to himself and associates."

The party cruised about Washington, testified Nelson, and stopped at a number of cafes to buy drinks. Some one suggested that they take a ride out into the country, and the party started out the old Chapel road.

After they had traversed about twenty-five miles, said Nelson, Pearce, who was at the wheel, lost his way; after driving up several roads that led them to farm houses, Pearce surrendered the wheel to Nelson, who says he is an automobile machinist. Nelson testified that he soon found his way to a main thoroughfare, and started as he thought, back to Washington.

X-Ray Hero's Son and Widow Wed Same Day

EAST ORANGE, N. J., July 18.—Miss Annie Baletina, 24 North Burnett street, will be married next Tuesday to Clarence Malvern Dally, of 103 North Clinton street, this city. The Rev. Dr. Charles Townsend will perform the ceremony, and immediately following will officiate at the marriage of Mrs. Maud Dally, mother of the first bridegroom, to Silas Carpenter, of Park Ridge, N. J.

Mrs. Dally is the widow of Clarence Malvern Dally, sr., who for years was an expert in the laboratory of Thomas Edison. The elder Dally lost both hands, then his arms, and finally his life while experimenting with x-rays.

Trust Legislation Delay Worrying the Democrats

Senator Brandegee's forecast that it would be weeks, perhaps months, before a vote would be had on trust bills has caused Democratic leaders to worry lest Congress be kept in session indefinitely.

TWO HURT IN CRASH THAT ENDS JOYRIDE

Injured Washington Men Have Little Chance for Life, Declare Surgeons.

BALTIMORE, July 18.—Two men are in a critical condition at the University Hospital and six others are prisoners at the Western police station following an automobile accident on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard early this morning. All the men are Washingtonians, and the mishap followed a joy ride that began in the Capital. The men held by the police are charged with driving off an automobile, the property of Mrs. G. A. Lambert, of the Dresden, Washington, without the owner's consent.

Two In Hospital.

Those at the hospital are: McCord Pearce, twenty-one, 1202 Eighteenth street, fractured skull, dislocated hip, lacerated face and legs; Frank Phillips, twenty-eight, of 629 G street, broken right arm, suffering from shock and may be internally injured.

Both men are unconscious and the physicians at the hospital hold out little hope for their recovery.

The following names and addresses were given by the men at the police station:

Arthur J. Bridgett, 2312 G street; William H. Duval, 2427 M street; Paul Bonaville, 138 H street; Joseph Scalla, 2102 H street; Paul Scalla, same address.

Arthur L. Nelson, 234 I street.

While driving at Washington, near the Scallas and Nelson, and after having them dressed at the hospital they were taken to the police station.

Six Held Without Bail.

The six prisoners were given a preliminary hearing before Justice Sayler, in the western police court, this morning, and then held without bail for a further hearing this afternoon. Over the telephone this morning Mrs. Lambert told Captain Cole that she would come to Baltimore, immediately, and she is expected to be present at the hearing this afternoon. Mrs. Lambert told the police captain that she did not know where her car was out of the garage last night.

With tears in his eyes Nelson recounted to Justice Sayler the events preceding and following the accident. He and six companions were walking down Pennsylvania avenue in Washington, near the Capitol, when Pearce drove up in an automobile. The witness said he was well acquainted with Pearce, and that he is "permanently unfit for the duties of a fireman, and that his retention in the service would be a source of danger to himself and associates."

Buy Drinks Before Ride.

The party cruised about Washington, testified Nelson, and stopped at a number of cafes to buy drinks. Some one suggested that they take a ride out into the country, and the party started out the old Chapel road.

After they had traversed about twenty-five miles, said Nelson, Pearce, who was at the wheel, lost his way; after driving up several roads that led them to farm houses, Pearce surrendered the wheel to Nelson, who says he is an automobile machinist.
